Today's US News

Tesla Inc (TSLA.O) shares fell on Thursday after the company decided to postpone the release of new vehicles until next year due to supply chain bottlenecks that the company claimed might extend all year.

Apple CEO Tim Cook announced on Thursday that the company's supply chain issues were improving, driving the stock up 5% in extended trade and providing a nice earnings beat.

With the US economy growing and the Federal Reserve preparing to raise interest rates for the first time in three years, banks in the United States will see better growth from their deposit-taking and lending businesses this year.

Today's China News

Meituan, a Chinese food delivery and local services company, has increased the ways in which China's digital yuan may be used to make purchases on its platform.

Hong Kong stocks fell the most in two months, driven by another round of selling in Alibaba Group Holding as more analysts cut their price expectations ahead of the company's reports.

Advanced Micro Devices Inc. received approval from Chinese regulators for its proposed $35 billion purchase of Xilinx Inc., according to a document released on Thursday.
